Dear Dr. Hjelmslev,

I read your book on case with great interest and admiration, though often with disagreement - and enclose a note suggested by one disagreement, though I must confess it was hastily thrown out and I may have misrepresented you. What I also have not made clear is that I scarcely believe the so-called s-genitive to be more a case than the possessive one, and cannot understand why at least adverbial -ly is not case-forming in the same right?

Please remind me of your writing of what kind of a life you have found with it.

Your sincerely
C. F. Boyer
