

Forfatter: Munch-Petersen, Gustaf

Titel: Udrag fra the god of the blood

Citation: Munch-Petersen, Gustaf: "Samlede skrifter II", i Munch-Petersen, Gustaf: Samlede skrifter II, Borgen, 1988. Onlineudgave fra Arkiv for Dansk Litteratur: <https://tekster.kb.dk/text/adl-texts-munp2-shoot-idm140381328670960.pdf> (tilgået 27. april 2024)

Anvendt udgave: Samlede skrifter II

I have given over the gods of 1935 -
I have given over
the god of pleasure
with the gilded * hands and the green face -
- I have gone
to the god of the blood - I have given over
the god of comfort with the murmuring anxiety and the rotten love-hands -
- I have gone
to the god of the blood -
I have known
the god of the bread, the blind warrior -
he gave the bread
and the hunger for bread, he said: "I know you not" -
- I have gone
to the god of the blood -
I have fought
the god of happiness, the soft-shouldered -
he gave what he had,
but he died on my sword - he whispered: "I hate you" -
- I have gone
to the god of the blood -!
he gave me nothing -, he said: "I have but the cruelty which is truth -, I have but the aloneness,
which is the way -,
I have but the place,
where to wait
with ice on your life -, my hand is no giver -,
my hand is the unbroken law -.
I am the god of the blood" -
- I have gone -,
and my lips are locked -
I have gone -,
I have touched the flame, which leaves no ashes and no love to man nor woman -